

What is the Valley Alliance of Worker Co-ops?

A “co-op of co-ops”, the Valley Alliance of Worker Co-operatives (VAWC) is an integrated network that works together as a means of strengthening the efforts of our individual co-ops to develop their businesses, serve their members, and contribute to the wider co-operative economy. VAWC is itself an expression of co-operative principles and is rooted in the ideals of co-operation, mutuality and solidarity. Our core goal is to provide ourselves with the resources and support we need to advance our co-operatives, empower our members, and benefit more people in our communities.

Who can be a member?

Workplaces that meet the criteria of being a worker co-operative as defined by the US Federation of Worker Co-operatives and the International Declaration on Worker Co-operatives (CICOPA). Membership is open to worker co-operatives in and around the Connecticut River Valley in Western New England. VAWC’s activities are centered in the Connecticut River Valley between Springfield, MA and Brattleboro, VT. Contact us about applying for membership.

What does VAWC want to achieve?

We envision a co-operative economy where one can live an entirely co-operative day: An economy built on workers’ self-determination and freedom of action and association; An economy of breadth and depth that puts working people in control of their economic destiny while serving their communities in accordance with the co-operative values and principles.

We work in local, national, and international movements.

From International Co-operative Alliance’s Statement on the Co-operative Identity

Definition: A co-operative is an autonomous association of persons united voluntarily to meet their common economic, social, and cultural needs and aspirations through a jointly-owned and democratically-controlled enterprise.
